CANNOT HOLD SHOW.

A determined effort was made by the manager of the Columbia Theatre to hold Lew Keily and the Behman Show over at that house next week, but it failed. This attraction has proved so popular at the Columbia that the house manager suggested to the board of directors of the Columbia Amusement Company that it be relatived. The matter was put up to Leon Laski, general counsel for the amusement concern, and he said that the prolongation of the Behman Show's engagement at the Columbia might entail legal entanglements since it would throw the booking arrangement of other shows out of gear.
